2017 ★ FINALISTS

BEST
Self-Produced
CD

In 2005, The Blues Foundation introduced the Best Self-Produced CD (BSPCD) contest as another way to celebrate up-and-coming artists. Where the IBC has been the measure of excellence for a band's live performance, the BSPCD title honors musicians that have achieved excellence in the studio. In addition to complementing the live component of the International Blues Challenge weekend, this contest further emphasizes the critical role of affiliated societies in the Blues world. BSPCD entries may only be submitted by affiliated blues societies in order to support and foster local blues. The CDs are evaluated on: (1) musical performance; (2) audio quality; (3) cover art and design; and (4) credits and liner notes.
